Microneedling stimulates your body's own natural healing response to improve skin texture.

Microneedling is a procedure that involves the use of a medical device with fine needles to create controlled micro-injuries to the skin. This process stimulates the natural healing response leading to production of collagen and elastin which can improve the appearance and texture of the skin.

The treatment indications include acne scars, enlarged pores, fine lines and wrinkles, pigmentation conditions, stretch marks, surgical scars and more.

To ensure optimal results and minimize discomfort and potential complications, it is important to follow these post-treatment instructions.
